Creating a Culture of Coexistence

"Thanks so much for your willingness to share with our students on this complicated and challenging issue. What you modeled for our students is exactly what we have tried to communicate in this course (among several other objectives!). The important component is respectful dialogue, even when we disagree, and working towards building trust. It was an outstanding example of how we have to work together!"

Dave Daley, CSU Chico Professor, in response to a California Wolf Center lecture on coexistence.

Welcome to the first of many California Wolf Center monthly newsletters! Now you can stay up to date on how we accomplish our mission and make our vision a reality.

Born to be Wild

Mexican gray wolf M1130 was born at the California Wolf Center and has now been released with his mate F1305 into the wild! We are so proud to have been involved in this wolf's life and cannot wait for updates on his wild adventure! This celebratory event is critical to save Mexican gray wolves from extinction.

Talking About Tolerance

Karin Vardaman, our Director of California Wolf Recovery, had the honor of speaking at Chico State University along with a rancher from Modoc county about the importance of working together through differing opinions of wild wolf recovery.

Education for Everyone

Our conservation center was visited by 200 guests this week! Among them was a very inquisitive seven year old girl determined to grow up to be a wildlife biologist. She was inspired by the curious yet shy nature of our resident wolves.

A Lasting Legacy

With a $5,000 donation you can create a legacy for a loved one or your family by naming one of our resident Mexican gray wolves! With less than four hundred Mexican gray wolves, this is an incredible opportunity! Please call our office for more information at 760-765-0030.

Voice of the Volunteers

Pam Howard is a San Diego native and eleven year volunteer at the California Wolf Center! She is our Membership Coordinator and has an immense passion for educating our guests about wolves.

The California Wolf Center is dedicated to the recovery of wolves in the wildlands they once roamed. We envision a landscape where wolves thrive in healthy ecosystems and wolves and people successfully coexist.
